A. BOATING LICENSES

The following regulations currently apply to the operation of motorised recreational craft on federal inland waterways: Sportbootführerschein-Binnen is required for the operation of craft less than 15 meters in length and having a motor output exceeding 3.68 kW).

Also recognised as fulfilling this requirement are the following documents: Motorbootführerscheine für Binnenfahrt A issued prior to 1 April 1989 by the German Motor Yacht Association and Sailing Patent A issued by the German Sailing Association (with the supplement “Segelboot mit Hilfsmotor” (sailboat with auxiliary motor)), as well as official recreational craft sailing patents, issued prior to 1 April 1978.

On inland waterways, with the exception of the Rhine, all operators of recreational craft in excess of 15 meters but less than 25 meters in length must be in possession of Sailing Patent E (Recreational Sailors Patent) (Fahrerlaubnis E Sportschifferzeugnis) pursuant to the Federal Inland Waterway Sailors Regulation. A recreational craft license issued prior to 31.12.1997 continues to be valid for operation of vessels having a tonnage displacement of 60 m<sup>3</sup> and a length of less than 25 meters. Those sailing vessels of the aforementioned types in the area of the Danube federal inland waterway between Straubing and Vilshofen must additionally be in possession of a route certificate (Streckenzeugnis).

Use of locks and boat channels at the barrages in Bad Abbach and Regensburg:

At the barrages at Bad Abbach and Regensburg recreational craft are, as a rule, required to use locks and channels provided for boats.

The boat locks are to be operated by those using them. Rules for their operation are posted at the stand near the lock chamber.

Boat channels may be used solely by vessels having a very shallow draught, e.g. row boats and paddle boats and only downstream. At the Bad Abbach boat channel such vessels may also be towed upstream through the channel.

Approaches to the boat locks and channels are indicated by signs reading "SPORT", or showing a row boat on a blue field pursuant to Annex 7 of Annex A of the Danube Navigational Police Decree.

Small craft may transit through the ship locks (generally together with ships) only when facilities for boats are not operating, or when boats cannot sail the southern arm of the Danube for safety reasons. If no ships are using the locks, small craft can also pass through the locks individually during daytime hours (6:00 am - 10:00 pm), provided no commercial ship traffic, or group of small vessels, with which the craft could transit the locks, are expected within the next hour. During night hours (10:00 pm-6:00 am), small craft may transit the locks together with commercial ships, provided this occasions no delay in passage of the latter.

Small craft must observe the lock entry and exit signals as well as signs in the lock areas. To pass the locks captains must register at the lock office, using intercoms located in the lock area, or by radio or telephone.

Sport vessels must wait at special piers until they are called to enter a lock chamber by the lock authorities. If such craft transit the locks together with large ships, they may enter the locks only after the latter, must tie up at an adequate distance from these vessels, and leave the locks after them at a sufficient distance.

Clearance beneath the bridge over the lower harbour at the Bad Abbach locks is 2.18 m. at the maximum high water level for shipping. Clearance beneath the weir bridge over the boat lock in Regensburg is 3.20 m. (at all water levels). Recreational craft, which owing to their height cannot pass below these bridges, may use the ship locks. The maximum high water level is fixed at 480 cm at Oberndorf water level gauge.

At the approaches to the locks for recreational craft at Bad Abbach and Regensburg a navigational channel of 15 dm is maintained at hydrostatic backwater level.

In the segments between Oberndorf (Danube-kilometre 2397.5 N) and the boat lock at Bad Abbach and between Regensburg (weir) (Danube-km 2381.3 S) and Eiserne Brücke (Danube-km 2379.3 S), a navigation channel of a depth of 9 dm at minimum water levels regulated low water level (RNW at Pegel Oberndorf 170 cm, RNW am Pegel Regensburg, Eiserne Brücke 206 cm) is as a rule maintained. Information on current water levels can be obtained by calling the automatic answering machine at Pegel Oberndorf (Tel. ++49/9405/19429) and Pegel Eiserne Brücke (Tel. ++49/941/19428), or from lock offices.

During the hours 10:00 pm-6:00 am, small craft transit locks together with ships.

Sailing the south arm of the Danube at Regensburg

On the south arm of the Danube at Regensburg, especially immediately downstream from the Steinerne Brücke (Danube km 2379.62 S), very high flow velocities may occur in combination with cross currents and large whirlpools.

When sailing the south arm of the Danube in Regensburg careful attention must be paid to the following:

- Vessels sailing beneath Steinerne Brücke, particularly during times recommended for passage.
- Moorings for guest ships on the right bank, as well as ships arriving or departing; museum ship tied up on the right bank immediately downstream from the Steinerne Brücke.
- Large ship traffic, including vessels tied up on the right bank of the river between the Eisernen Brücke, Danube km 2379.26 S and Lazarettspitze, Danube km 2377.80 S.

For safety reasons small vessels also must use the ship locks at Regensburg.

Use of facilities for recreational craft from the barrage at Geisling to Jochenstein

In lock areas small craft must observe the entrance and exit signals as well as the special signs. Operators of vessels wishing to sail through the locks must announce themselves at the operations centre using the intercoms in the lock area, or by radio or telephone.

Recreational vessels must wait at the specially designated areas until instructed by the operations centre to enter a lock chamber. When passing through the lock together with large ships, they may enter the lock only after the latter, must tie up at an adequate distance, and exit the lock chamber after them. Recreational craft pass through the locks at Geisling, Straubing, Kachlet and Jochenstein together with large ships. If no large ships are to use the locks, small vessels may pass through individually during daytime hours (6:00 am-10:00 pm), insofar as no other commercial vessels or group of small boats, with which they could transit the locks together, is expected within the coming hour. During night hours (10:00 pm-6:00 pm), small craft may pass through the locks together with commercial vessels provided this causes no delays in planned passages.

Small craft without engines (e.g. row boats and canoes), which can be transported by their crews overland, must use the appropriate facilities provided for transferring their vessels, except at Straubing barrage.

At Straubing barrage there is a boat lane (clear width 2.30 m.) at which small craft can also be hauled upstream. It is recommended that less experienced captains transport their vessels on land.

Between 10:00 pm and 6:00 am, small craft may pass through the locks together with large ships.

Maximum water levels for ship traffic

If water levels in the Danube exceed the maximum limit established for ship traffic, all vessels must cease operation. The maximum water levels for various segments of the river are contained in the table below.

Segment	Maximum water level	Location	Tel. no. (answering machine)
Kelheim - Regensburg Lock	480 cm	Oberndorf	09405/19429
Regensburg Lock - Geisling Lock	520 cm	Regensburg Schwabelweis	0941/19429
Geisling Lock - Straubing Lock	600 cm	Pfatter	09481/19429
Straubing Lock - Deggendorf	620 cm	Pfelling	09422/19429
Deggendorf - Schalding	480 cm	Hofkirchen	08545/19429
Schalding - Jochenstein	780 cm	Passau-Donau	0851/19429

Sailing old arms

Small craft (except those used for commercial fishing or in exercise of a hunting license) which are equipped with a motor may not sail the old arms of the river, e.g. water surfaces behind guiding walls or longitudinal dykes.

MAIN-DANUBE-CANAL

A. BOATING LICENSES

Traffic on the Main-Danube canal is governed by the Inland Waterway Navigation Regulations (Binnenschiffahrtsstrassenordnung – BinSchStrO). The Main-Danube canal as a federal inland waterway is administered by the Water and Navigation Directorate – South (Wasser- und Schiffahrtsdirektion Süd) from the point the canal branches off from the Main to where it joins the Danube, a distance of 171 kilometres (106 miles) with sixteen locks.

Sportbootführerschein-Binnen is required for the operation of vessels commonly used for sporting or recreational purposes, which are longer than 15 meters and equipped with an engine of more than 3.68 kW (propeller). Foreign nationals wishing to sail the Main-Danube canal need only a sailing certificate issued by their own country, provided they do not stay in Germany for more than twelve months. In the case of stays in excess of twelve months, German regulations must be complied with.

Sportschifferzeugnis: The Inland Waterway Navigation Regulations require operators of recreational craft not longer than 25 metres on inland navigation routes to be in possession of a Class E Recreational Captain's Certificate (Sportschifferzeugnis).

Sportpatent: The Recreational Sailing Certificate (Sportpatent) required for operation of recreational craft on the Rhine pursuant to the Rhine Sailing Certificate Regulation also entitles holders to operate recreational vessels on inland waterways; under the Inland Waterway Sailing Certificate Decree this document is deemed an equivalent title.

Procedures for use of ship locks on the Main-Danube canal

Motorboats: Vessels not longer than 20 meters are small craft as defined by the Inland Waterway Navigation Regulations (Binnenschiffahrtsstrassen-Ordnung). Such vessels are permitted to use the ship locks. Small craft may use the locks at Riedenburg and Kelheim only if the boat locks are not in operation, or cannot be used because of vessel size. In general, boats pass through the locks together with commercial ships.

As the locks along the Main-Danube Canal from Kelheim to Forchheim are now operated remotely, registration for passage in the Steuerhaus is no longer possible. Registration for passage must be made using one of the means described (radio, telephone, intercoms).

D. BOAT RENTALS, CHARTERS

There are no companies renting or chartering boats on the Main-Danube canal.

A. BOATING LICENSES

Shipping on the Danube is governed by international regulations. Austrian citizens must be in possession of an Austrian license. Foreign ships and captains may sail the Danube with the corresponding documents issued by the country of which they are citizens, or with an International Certificate for Operators of Recreational Boats. Vessels must be in safe operating condition, operators are required to be acquainted with the particularities of the stretch of the river sailed and the valid rules of the road.

As of 1 July 1997 the following regulations govern the operation of vessels (Navigation Act, BGBl. I No. 62/1997)

Licenses (licenses pursuant to the Navigation Act of 1932, Captain’s License A, Ship Operator’s Licenses A and C pursuant to the Navigation Act of 1990) issued under legislation in force up until 30 June 1997 continue to be valid.

General comments: Neither a registration document nor license is required to sail rowboats and sailboats on the Austrian Danube; the rules of the road however apply to both types of vessel. To operate motorboats both registration document and license are required. Motorboats can be used year round on the Danube.

Registration: Both registration document and license number are required for motorboats, except those powered by an electric motor with an input of less than 4.4 kW. Sailboats with an auxiliary engine (combustion engine) are considered motorboats. The international registration document for “recreational vessels” and corresponding national registration documents are recognized. Operator requirements: A certificate of qualification is required for the operation of motorized vessels having an engine with input power in excess of 4.4 kW. The “International Certificate for Operators of Recreational Vessels” is recognized as are appropriate licenses issued by the authorities of other states. Austrian citizens operating recreational craft must be in possession of an Austrian license. Competent authorities: Registration documents are issued by the office of the governor of the province in which the owner maintains his permanent residence.

A. BOATING LICENSES

Foreign nationals in possession of appropriate documents issued by their country of origin, or having an International Certificate for Operators of Recreational Boats, may operate boats and yachts on the Danube. Boats and yachts must be in safe operating condition. According to the law of Serbia, the captain of a foreign yacht or boat is required to apply for a special certificate for cruising the Danube at the nearest harbor office. This certificate entitles the holder to sail freely and dock at all designated docking places. The certificate also contains a list of crew members and passengers including personal information from their passports (as per 2006).
